SNOWSPORT ENGLAND INSTRUCTOR COURSES UPDATE - 12-13

EDITOR'S message

Hi to you all. I hope you have enjoyed your winter ski season. It no sooner seems to start than it's over!

This year seems to have been an excellent year for snowfalls; Austria, Switzerland, Italy, Canada and the USA all had early dumps to start it all off.

It all started just before Christmas in Europe with huge dumps of the white stuff. I was lucky enough to be in Val Gardena the week before Christmas; having checked at regular intervals the web cams on the Val Gardena website I was concerned that no snow would have fallen by the time I travelled.

One week before it was still pretty green, then came the snow and, boy, did it snow! My week was an excellent one with huge falls and fabulous skiing conditions.

With Easter a little later this year, many of you will be having a late ski break. Hopefully, the snow will hang around for a while yet. For those of you still to go on your trip, enjoy.

In our last issue of the season

With days to go before the Winter Olympics in Torino we talk to Finlay Mickel, Britain's hope in the Downhill.

We feature one of skiing's "Great Ski Days Out" – a day trip around the Sella Ronda in the Dolomites.

The latest report from Tim Fawke on England's Alpine team.

Freestyle – Brits take on the world ... and a charity Snow-Camp that takes some of the country's most disadvantaged kids to the Alps – your chance to help kids enjoy the joys of skiing and boarding.

Productive meeting on modernisation programme

At the Council meeting on 3 December 2005, the November Snowsport GB congress presentation was presented to Council members. The full presentation is available on the website on www.snowsportengland.org.uk

It was followed by a question and answer session. A number of questions were raised by Council, and these questions accompany the presentation on the website with the answers given on the day.

Key questions have been highlighted, which will be fed back to the Modernisation Working Groups. A hard copy of the presentation and questions has been sent to all clubs and regions.

The consultation with Council was very productive and there was a considerable amount to gain from the day. Council raised some very important questions that need to be answered before taking the proposals to the clubs and regions.

Council recommended that roadshows be postponed until their questions had been answered and members can be better informed. The Board have, therefore, accepted this recommendation. The roadshows are expected to take place after Easter.

■ If after reading the presentations and questions and answers you have any additional questions or would like to offer any feedback, please contact info@snowsportengland.org.uk

Snowsports day to boost profile

This year sees the inauguration of the National Ski and Snowboarding Day on Saturday 4 March.

The aim of the day is to promote all aspects of snowsports activities, and the event has been chosen to take place shortly after the Turin Winter Olympics, taking place from 10 - 26 February 2006.

It is hoped the day will encourage non-skiers and boarders to join in the various activities, promotions and competitions taking place across the country.

All details will be published on the website www.nationalskiand snowboardingday.com.

In addition there will be many offers for active skiers and snowboarders.

The day is the idea of the Snowsports Forum whose aim is continuously to raise the profile of snow-related activities.

The day also seeks to improve the understanding of ski activities and raise the profile of health and fitness benefits.

The National Ski and Snowboarding Day has already won the support of tour operators, tourist boards, airlines and ski related organisations.

Caroline Stuart-Taylor, chief executive of the Ski Club of Great Britain, said: "The Turin Winter Olympics will create a platform from which we can promote a sport which is not only fun and fashionable but that is good for you too.

"How many other sports encourage you to work out at altitude in clean mountain air?"

"The introduction of new technologies and wider carving skis means that most skiers and boarders are able to ski unaided down a hill within a day and improvement comes fast thereafter."

Ms Stuart-Taylor continued: "We are positive that the 4 March 2006 will be an exciting day and hopefully many people will be encouraged to give snow sports the chance it deserves."

BARSC triumph for member

Snowsport England member Greg Evans had a successful outing at this year's BARSC Championships at Les Menuires, France.

He took gold medal in the British Slalom event in the Junior 1 category, and was the fastest British racer overall in this Junior 1 and Junior 2 slalom championship.

Podium triumph: Greg Evans with Frankie Clough and Jai Geyer.

In poor weather conditions, he completed the two runs successfully to take the lead in what had been intended to be just a training trip with his club Sandown Park Ski Racing Club based in Esher.

Frankie Clough took the silver medal and Jai Geyer, bronze in this Junior 1 category.

GETfit

Skiing is one of the best ways of burning calories – 30 minutes downhill skiing burns 247 calories, says the Ski Club of Great Britain.

This compares with:

- 189 calories for 30 minutes cycling
- 192 calories for 30 minutes vigorous canoeing
- 162 calories golfing, and
- 114 calories fishing.

Skiing also works all major muscle groups – and all this in the fresh mountain air!

EHIC - make sure you understand rules on claims

In response to news items about the new EHIC (formerly E111) card, you need to be aware that you will only get a refund after the treatment by applying to the relevant office in the country where the injury occurred. Most insurance companies insist that you make the claim before they refund money, less the refund received via the EC.

If you do not make a claim against an EHIC, they will probably reduce the amount refunded. The excuse that you do not have a EHIC is not usually accepted.

Also it is important to notify the insurance company before obtaining treatment, especially in a case of serious injury. Always ask for a claim reference number to prove you have advised them. Make sure you have the emergency number of the insurance company handy (it's no use to you at home!).

To get the refund from the EC:

- At the time of treatment, ensure the doctor/chemist is aware of your entitlement by showing the new EHIC card. They will then produce the correct receipt for you to claim a refund. THEY WILL EXPECT PAYMENT IN FULL.

- Before leaving the resort make sure you have the address of the local social security office where you must make the claim.

- This office will require all original documents. (Make sure you have a copy for the insurance company but do request the originals back from the social security office).

- Inform your insurance company of the claim immediately. Do NOT wait until you get the refund from the social security.

- On the social security form make sure you ask for the refund in Sterling (unless you have a Euro bank account) as the refund otherwise will automatically be in Euros.

SnOasis: Latest £300m planning phase delayed

Barry Spouge reports

In the last issue of The Piste we featured the proposed £300m SnOasis development planned for the old Blue Circle Cement works at Great Blakenham, near Ipswich, in Suffolk. At the time of publishing it was expected that a planning meeting to discuss the proposals would be held on 13 December 2005. The meeting was delayed to a date as yet unknown.

Developer Godfrey Spanner said: "Although the chief executive and planning officer felt they could meet the December date, one of the agencies involved was unable to agree with the predicted number of visitors to SnOasis.

"These numbers had originated three years ago for locum Destination Consulting Ltd, revisited by them a year ago and a fresh estimate prepared by Grant Thornton in June 2005.

"A report commissioned by Mid Suffolk DC, Ipswich Borough, Suffolk County, EEDA, SDA and several other bodies and carried out by DTZ on a totally impartial basis, came up with the same numbers!

"Although this report was widely publicised in November 2005, it was not until mid-January 2006 that the agency concerned was persuaded that we might have been right.

"This is the last significant box to be ticked and I assume that we are now on a straight line to a planning committee – with luck in early April."

Meanwhile, the importance of SnOasis has been further recognised as an Olympics training camp from 2010-12.

Alpine plan for young disadvantaged

Positive experience: Young people from south London enjoy Snow-Camp.

Taking some of Britain's toughest and most disadvantaged kids out of the restrictive environment of south London's estates to the exhilarating surroundings of the Alps, where they can learn to snowboard, ski and develop their life skills, can be a life-changing experience.

Dan Charlish moved jobs to work at a community project in Stockwell, south London, and was doing a lot of youth work with kids and young people on local estates.

He explained: "As with many inner city areas, the community was struggling with a whole range of social problems. There were lots of families on very low incomes and large numbers of young people with nothing to do at a high risk of getting involved in drugs, gangs, fighting, crime and so on."

In 2003, Dan convinced five friends with a range of experiences, skills and contacts voluntarily to give up their time to help establish Snow-Camp, a registered charity.

Snow-Camp has already taken two groups of young people to Les Deux Alps – in March 2004 and April 2005 – with a further trip planned for April this year.

Fundraising for Snow-Camp proved a major challenge. However, after lots of form-filling and perseverance, Snow-Camp received its first grants from the Skiers Trust of Great Britain, UnLtd Lottery Fund and Stockwell Community Grants and were able to launch the first pilot Snow-Camp trip to Les Deux Alpes in 2004.

Additional support from companies such as Mambo, Edge to Edge Clothing, Ellis Brigham and a local French family-run shop in Les Deux Alpes called La Datcha, enabled Snow-Camp to kit out the first groups of young people.

"Learning to ski or snowboard also requires a lot of the skills and characteristics which young people need to develop as they grow up – perseverance, commitment, concentration, listening, decision making and so on – and we felt these could also form elements of a very positive experience for young people," said Dan.

"A Life-Skills course, built into the week, is effectively based around these issues and highlights for the young people the skills they are using and confidence they are developing – and how these will be useful back in their home situation. It creates a level playing field where the hierarchy of the estates can be left behind.

"I know how I feel staring across the Alps breathing crisp mountain air at a blue sky about to start a days boarding with my mates. It's just something young people who have grown up in the inner city estates need to experience. In London they are very territorial, and rarely leave their 'endz'."

Dan and the Snow-Camp team have discovered that skiing and snowboarding really do provide a fantastic platform for youth work – and it's believed to be the first organisation to use snowboarding and skiing in this way.

Snow-Camp is a young people's charity with an important role in today's society – it provides attractive opportunities that are relevant to today's youth culture and, by doing so, engages young people in a very positive experience.

■ Snow-Camp relies on donations and sponsorship to develop and to be able to offer the opportunity to even more young people. If you'd like to help out, whether by donating gear, providing sponsorship or giving a one off donation you can do this by visiting www.snow-camp.co.uk or call Dan at Snow-Camp on 07930695384 or email info@snow-camp.co.uk

CASEstudy

The young people that take part in Snow-Camp also benefit greatly from personal growth and reflection.

Marcus Lendon, a 19-year-old who lives with his mother and two brothers on an estate in Streatham, said he had never imagined himself being able to go on a foreign holiday.

"I hadn't done anything like it before. It was my first time abroad. I'd never imagined myself doing it because of the cost but it was the best thing I've ever done," says Marcus.

"When we were there we were talking about how you shouldn't give up in life. Because when you do then you don't get anything done. When you're skiing or boarding you just have to get up and try again if you fall down."

Prince keeps his pledge to Ski Club

The Earl of Wessex kept a promise by visiting the new slope complex at Norfolk Ski Club in Norwich.

Due to open the new developments last October, Prince Edward was taken ill the day before and unable to perform the opening. The Lord Lieutenant of Norfolk, Richard Jewson, performed the opening on his behalf.

The Prince pledged to visit the club and kept his promise in January. Following a tour of the site, which now boasts two ski slopes, a Fun Park, large Nursery slope, a Moguls field plus a larger main slope area fed by five new lifts, he met members of the club, contractors involved in the project and special guests.

All areas except the main slope are now covered in SnowFlex carpet matting. The main slope remains in Dendex at present.

"The Prince was very impressed by what he saw and the commitment of the club," said Barry Spouge, chairman and director of the club. "He thoroughly enjoyed his visit and meeting both members and those that were involved in the development."

Sport England granted Lottery funding of nearly £700,000 to the project, local authority grants of £25,000 and the remainder funded by the club helped to fulfil the £1.5m project aim.

Christmas work and play

Team appeal: The winter camp in Norway.

FUNDraiser

Tamworth Snowdome has offered its facilities to host a fundraising evening for young England alpine skier Segal Fairweather. Money raised from the event will help to secure Segal's place in the England Team for the forthcoming season. Tickets at £5 from craftymums@btconnect.com

Head Alpine Coach Tim Fawke reports

The England Alpine Ski Team Christmas Camp was based in Norway again over the Christmas period. The camp ran alongside the Scottish and we trained together most days.

We started off in Hafjell which is where some of the Olympic events were held in 1994.

They were really helpful and provided good training facilities, despite the lack of natural snow.

We managed to train Super-G, which worked really well as they built jumps which gave the athletes some much-needed practice over jumps in a safe environment.

Then, in a snowstorm on 17

December, we moved up to Oppdal which is where we were based for the rest of the camp.

Bad luck for Jake Richardson, who crashed in GS training and broke his arm. This meant a two-hour trip to the nearest hospital – not the nicest drive. It also meant Jake had to go home early and miss the races.

Adam Gellatly had to go home early as well due to a leg injury – which meant our numbers were down to 10 athletes.

We trained hard up until Christmas and then had a day off with the usual Christmas sledging, snowball fight and dinner!

It was then time to refocus ourselves as the races started on 27 December. There were eight races in total: four SL and four GS.

As always the races produced a mixed bag of results – but, overall, very successful.

Best results came from Segal Fairweather scoring 66 and 67 in SL, which is very good for a first year FIS. Tania Scilimati did well with a 66 in the GS, considering she had an injured back and could not move properly.

So the athletes headed home on 10 January, but it took me another three days to get back with the minibus thanks to the ferry time table.

The camp was a good start to the races this season and hopefully everyone will move forward from here. The next team camp is in Oslo, Norway during February half term.

Cash boost: Segal Fairweather.

NEW sponsor

The 2005-06 season looks bright for the Snowsport England Alpine Ski Team with Ford dealer Gates of Harlow providing a discounted lease minibus for the team.

The sponsorship deal is for six months while the team are travelling in Europe, following a trip to Norway in December and training in France and Austria in January and February.

Head Coach Tim Fawke would also like to thank Ski into the Blue for their help in brokering the deal.

The team have seen some excellent results this season already with Segal Fairweather and Joanna Ryding scoring good FIS points in Opdall.

Gates have been operating Ford dealerships since 1919 and, 85 years on, Gates is still a family business with the present managing director the fifth generation of family owners. The company now has seven dealerships in Essex and Hertfordshire (see www.gatesgroup.co.uk)

Brits put on good show at punishing French course

British Freestyle riders took part in World Cups in January at the French Resort of Les Contamines.

In the Ski X Angus Morrison (unsponsored) finished 38th, his best result to date and building on last season's experience.

He is now very close to making the top 32 and finals when the event becomes a "four-man" knock-out, being only fractions of a second behind the leaders.

MOGULSnews

Lone Brit Simon Bates proved that he is still on the up by scoring a personal best, and the best British Mogul skiing result in over 10 years in January at Lake Placid. Rapidly changing weather conditions made for a tough course on the Whiteface Mountain, but Bates proved he was up to it, with his huge spin and backflip propelling him into the top 30.

"Definitely my fastest run to date, and one of the most fun. When I crossed the line I just started laughing. I'm absolutely stoked to have broken into the top 30 and scored my first World Cup Standing Points," said Bates.

The result also meets the Olympic qualification criteria required by the International Olympic Committee and the International Ski Federation.

Sheffield Sharks Ski Club has rewarded the achievements of some of their young skiers with the presentation of the annual awards.

The award for Most Improved Moguls Skier for 2005 was shared this year between nine-year-old Hannah Handford-Styring (Sponsor: Xscape) and 10-year-old Katie Summerhayes.

After the 2005 season it proved impossible to separate the two performers, Hannah having won the Moguls in the minis category at Kendal and being the British Artificial Moguls Champion in Girls Minis and Katie having won the Moguls (Minis) in the Yorkshire Snowsports Champs.

The Les Contamines course was potentially the most punishing yet with up to one-third of the skiers withdrawing through injury.

Emily Sarsfield (unsponsored) reached the quarter finals in her second Ski X World Cup, ultimately finishing 15th placing and 3rd in her heat – an amazing achievement in only her third FIS Ski X event. With any luck this will push her into the top 30 in the World.

“You have no mountains, and you're kicking my ass”

One of the Swiss girls

In the Halfpipe, Shelley Jones (Salomon) achieved GB Freestyle's first ever top ten in HalfPipe, 9th, carrying out the same tricks as the other girls, but with a little less amplitude. This event has shown she can mix it with the best.

Andy Bennet (Line Skis, The North Face) was lying in 13th place going into the semi final, but fell on his third hit, bouncing off the coping of the pipe while carrying out a huge 540. Andy will be back to claim the final place that he knows is within his grasp.

Rookies Richard Martin (riding Atomic) and Will Burrows (riding Dynastar) excelled in their first International competitions. Given spots based on their UK results, both trained hard and put together runs to be proud of, gaining 21st and 26th places respectively, beating many seasoned pros.

Both performed big flairs in their runs, Will's just failing to come off causing him to lose a ski, fall and drop valuable places.

The evening Final attracted a crowd of thousands with flying Fin Kalle Leinonen taking first place ahead of Canada's Michael Riddle and France's Alexandre Laube in the men's event.

In the women's final France's Anais Caradeux took first place ahead of Swiss Mirjam Jaeger and Swede Marta Ahrenstedt.

MOGULScourses

Moguls Coaches Course

Snowsport England will be running an ASFSPC Moguls Coaches course on the weekend of 13-14 May (9.30am - 4pm each day).

This will be held at the real snow moguls slope at Xscape, Castleford, and will cost £100 inclusive of slope fees and course instruction.

Skiers will need to be qualified to BASI 3, ASSI or higher.

There are just a couple of spaces left on this course and anyone interested should contact martin.carr@freestylesnowsports.co.uk to register their interest.

The course will take instructors through the principles of “flat work” (outside the moguls), current mogul technique, as well as skiing in the newly innovated real snow moguls field exclusive to Xscape Castleford.

Participants who achieve the necessary standard will qualify as an ASFSPC (Moguls) and be able to specialise in coaching moguls technique from absolute beginner to an intermediate standard.

Introduction to Moguls Course

Also running on 13 May, at Xscape, Castleford, (9.30am - 4pm), Snowsport England will be running an “Introduction to Moguls” one-day course.

This is designed to develop intermediate skiers' and trainee instructors' knowledge and technical ability of moguls skiing.

There are no qualifications required for this course except that skiers must be competent parallel skiers and preferably have some experience in moguls skiing. Anyone interested should contact pk@freestylesnowsports.co.uk to register. Cost of the day will be £50.

■ We would be happy to consider putting on a course on your home slope or at an alternative time subject to numbers. You can make contact at either of the above email addresses.

■ Check out the real snow slope Events Calendar on Xscape's website www.xscape.co.uk for confirmed dates of when the moguls are available.

ALPINE PERFORMANCE COURSE

Course Aim

The Alpine Performance Coach Level 1 course is designed specifically for those who work with young skiers on a regular basis. It will provide information which will enable the coach to carry out his/her coaching role within a coaching programme more effectively. The training aims to ensure that children in their charge engage in safe purposeful practises, which will develop skiing performance in addition to enhancing the personal development of the skiers.

Course Description

The six-day course contains elements designed to improve the participants' ability to coach skiers in a mountain environment and to introduce skiing to children in a safe and enjoyable manner. Active participation is required of all candidates.

Course Content

Performance, stance and balance; edge, pressure and steering control; coach theory and practice; coaching philosophy; processes and style

Athlete Skill Development

Skills analysis; developing skills through use of slalom poles; setting appropriate drill courses; concept of skill/drill matching.

Assessment is continual during the six days of the course. Course participants will be expected to demonstrate an understanding of the material covered during the course and be able to assimilate this material into a practical context. The course Tutor will provide ongoing feedback during the course concerning participants' performance. On completion, the Tutor will conduct individual course review with each participant.

Next Course

The dates will be from Sunday 16 April to Friday 21 April 2006 and Sunday 23 April to Friday 28 April 2006 held in Tignes. Tutor will be Tim Fawke and hotel accommodation has been reserved. There are only 8 places available on each course so early booking is advisable. Course cost is £290 plus accommodation. Call Jenny at Snowsport England on 0121 501 2314 to put your name on the list.

Free-heel skiing, Telemark and Nordic skills activity week

Kvitavatn, Norway, 1-8 April 2006

Who is the course for?

- Alpine skiers who wish to add Telemarking to their downhill skills.
- Cross-country skiers who wish to improve their skills, whether their interests are in touring, racing or free-heel downhill.

What will we be doing?

Mornings will consist of skills training in groups of similar ability. Afternoons will include a range of fun activities. Some of the instructors:

Andy Stewart - qualified BASI Telemark Instructor and a Senior Tutor for Snowsport England.
Ian Johnston - a Snowsport England Nordic Downhill Coach holding a Mountain Instructor Award.

How much does it cost?

Coaching costs are £225 for the week. Flights from London Heathrow, transfer, accommodation and meals can be either arranged independently, or through Waymark Holidays at a cost of £499.

How do I book?

- Waymark Holidays. Tel 01753 516477 or email snosport@waymarkholidays.com
- Hele Bell (Snowsport England) Tel 01274 875680 or email helen@hebell.fsnet.co.uk

"This course has reactivated my skiing career. I will have lots of fun learning and applying new-found free-heel skills, and still have my Alpine skiing skills to fall back on."

John Dimmock, first-time Telemarker and participant on 2004 course.

Let's get fit!

You need to recover fast for your next day on the slopes or your next workout. Here Carl Petersen, Personal Trainer (right) and travelling physio for the Canadian Alpine Ski Team, presents some recovery tips used effectively by the Canadian Alpine Ski Team and travelling tennis pros to optimize recovery.

Recovery - a generic term used specifically with reference to the restoration of the physiological systems and regeneration of psychological parameters that have been altered during activity.

Your responsibility as a skiing athlete is to minimize the effort it takes to recover.

Being smart about your skiing, training and recovery means recognizing non-adaptive responses to training such as prolonged fatigue, sleep disturbances, pain and inflammation in any joints or muscles. Some people work out or ski even when they are sick and sometimes they do too much, too fast, too hard and too soon risking problems associated with over-training or overuse injuries. Following are some practical tips to help keep you Fit to Ski.

■ Re-Hydrate

Dehydration is enemy number one so drink plenty of water or clear fluid. Try clear juice or sports drinks diluted with water. The goal is to have light coloured urine. The harder, higher and hotter conditions you ski or train in the more you need to drink. A good rule of thumb is 1-2 glasses for every hour of activity (beer does not count).

Pre-hydration and immediate re-hydration are key since, once you become de-hydrated, it may take 24 hours to top up your tank and that means 24 hours of potentially impaired training or skiing.

■ Re-Fuel

To ensure adequate nutrition (carbohydrates) gets back into the muscles try eating 50-70 grams of carbohydrates within 20-30 minutes of stopping exercise. You can get this by eating a small potato, 1/2 cup raisins, cereal (raisin bran) and milk (1 cup) or sports drinks if available.

Slower carbohydrates are best and even better if mixed with a little protein (30%).

Respect the warning signs your body is sending you. Common sense should always prevail ...

■ Re-Align

Sports like skiing are asymmetrical in nature and can torque the body's muscle and fascial systems leading to an imbalance in length and strength. As well, the flexed posture of sport further adds to this imbalance. Simple symmetrical stretches for the low back and hips will help keep you aligned. However if you are experiencing low back, SI joint or hip tightness and discomfort talk to your physical therapist to see if your pelvis is malaligned.

They can give you some simple hold and relax exercises to remedy it.

■ Regain Muscle Length

The soft tissues of the body naturally react to hard work with some adaptive shortening and may develop knots or adhesions that need to be stretched out. Stretching will help get your muscles back to normal length so they can work as shock absorbers for your joints next day on the slopes.

All stretches should be held for 30-40 seconds to point of tension NOT PAIN.

■ Recovery Workout

To help flush out the lactic acid and other waste products that build up in the muscle during training and play, try a "spin only" light resistance cycle at 75-80 RPM (revolutions per minute) and a HR (heart rate) of 100-115 BPM (beats per minute).

Two ways to achieve this are:

- 1 x 20-30 min cycle spin followed by light stretching, or
- 2 x 10-15 min with some light stretching in between.

You can substitute pool, fast walk or elliptical trainer for variety.

These practical recovery tips will help you recover quickly and keep you "Fit to Ski"

YOUR letters

from Iain Mackay, Romsey

The December/January edition of The Piste included an article by Graham Bell (British Ski racing: A lesson learned?) in which Graham described Konrad's celebrated second place in the Val Gardena World Cup Downhill of 1981 as "the best British World Cup Skiing result to date".

Now I suppose that "best" is an adjective open to interpretation and Graham is entitled to his view on that, but I would have thought that Jilly Curry's Freestyle career, that in the period 1987 to 1994 netted 29 top 3 places of which 3 were firsts, ought at least to make her a candidate for the title.

The Editor writes: Thanks for your email. I have sent this on to Graham Bell to add his comment to it. I think Graham is obviously talking "Alpine" skiing. Jilly's Freestyle career will take some beating even in today's stiff competition.

from John Williams, British Masters Team Captain and FIS Representative, and Alan Jones, British Masters Group Artificial Slope Event Organiser

We are writing this open letter to the Piste because:

■ ARC (Alpine Racing Committee of Snowsport England – SSE) has failed to offer any encouragement to skiers over the age of 19 to continue with racing and to those who started skiing later in life to ever participate in competition.

■ ARC has failed to acknowledge the principle that Masters age groups should be treated in the same way as junior age groups, i.e. having age categories.

■ ROTP has circulated a letter to some Masters which is misleading and fails to invite them to express an opinion on the proposals submitted by the Masters Group.

■ ARC has not had the courtesy to respond to suggestions from the British Masters Group of Snowsport GB.

The British Masters Group had proposed replacing the old single Veterans age category (over 35) by multiple Masters age groups (over 30) corresponding to FIS policy for nearly 20 years. However it recognised that numbers currently involved in England did not justify five year age categories. It therefore proposed (and still proposes) that in SSE races there should be one medal in each of the 30-39, 40-49, and over 50 age groups (male and female) instead of 1st, 2nd and 3rd for over 35s. This would have involved no extra cost as the number of medals was unchanged. In the event, medals were offered in ESC Club National Races for 1st, 2nd and 3rd in each of these age categories which resulted in significant wastage.

Without reference to the Masters Group, ARC then went back to one age category offering 1st, 2nd and 3rd prizes for all SSE events but only for one 'over 30s' category. This left older skiers significantly disadvantaged. It is more unreasonable for someone aged 70+ to compete against someone aged 30 than someone aged 11 to compete against someone aged 19.

We would urge all skiers who may be interested in Masters racing to make their views known to ARC. Also we have made the point to ARC that it is the listing of the Masters categories in the computerised race results which takes precedence over the medals. Failing agreement to provide the three medals above we would settle for the listing of three Masters Categories in the results.

from Gill Hall, Leader Alpine Racing Committee, Snowsport England

I was very disappointed and somewhat bewildered to read the criticisms directed at ARC in the open letter to the The Piste magazine. At every ARC/ROTP meeting for the past 2+ years, I have been involved with ARC, the Master categories has been discussed at great length, mainly due to correspondence from a couple of members of this group. We have tried to accommodate their requests whenever possible, but we also have to look at the wider picture and implications their requests may have on the organisations/clubs running the events.

At the last ARC meeting in October 2005, to make sure we were getting the views of a greater number of Masters, it was decided that SSE should write to every registered Master asking their opinions on age categories and the issue of medals. We received a 20% response and almost half of those who replied asked that the three Masters categories be acknowledged in prize giving, but medals only be issued to the top three overall masters of each sex.

This will not, therefore result in clubs having to purchase additional medals that are invariably wasted. As happily we still live in a democratic society, the response received by ARC/ROTP will now be acted upon in the coming season. I would also like to point out that because of feedback from previous years, we have included a Masters category in the English Alpine Championships for the first time this year.

ARC is charged with the interests of all aspects of Alpine skiing and will always offer encouragement to anybody who wishes to participate in the sport in whatever form. I would argue vehemently that the Masters views have always been taken into account, discussed, minuted and responded to.

ARC welcomes opinions and suggestions on how the sport can be improved. It is the only way we can move forward, and I can assure you that all the decisions made by ARC are considered and discussed beforehand on an egalitarian basis, with the interests of everybody taken into account.

UK's 'oldest ski club' celebrates 70 years of development

The Lake District Ski Club reached its 70th birthday on 2 January, 2006, and a celebratory party was held in the Millennium Hut situated at 2500ft (750m) on Raise, to the north of Helvellyn.

Active members range in age from 10 - 75 years. The club has a modern button lift and a new members' hut, rebuilt for the Millennium.

There are rarely queues because Raise, a mountain in the Helvellyn Range, is not for the faint-hearted. The Raise skier has to walk from the valley bottom to the tow, carrying all their gear and food. This normally takes about an hour.

The club was formed by a group of local enthusiasts, one of whose aims was to exchange information about suitable ski-ing areas in the Lake District. The founding members called a meeting at which 12 were present, drew up a constitution and the club came into being.

We believe this is one of the oldest ski clubs in the UK.

The first members, about 40, skied all over the Lake District and there are accounts in a club journal, published in 1938, of expeditions to Skiddaw, Coniston Old Man, Raise, Bowfell, Esk Hause and Scafell Pike. The early members were mainly ski mountaineers. Many of the past presidents were noted alpinists and some took part in Everest expeditions.

During the 1950s the club's activities became centred on Raise. Savages Gully, a north-facing gully, was found to form a very good drift, which retained snow for many weeks.

The idea of a tow was mooted for the gully. Much energy, improvisation and time was spent designing such a device. It was built in a garage in Penrith, taken to pieces, and then hailed up Raise and reassembled.

Kath Bannister, past president, and Mike Crossley, past president and club archivist, look back at the 70-year history of the Lake District Ski Club

A tractor formed the basis for this first tow. Later in the 1960s a three-cylinder Lister diesel engine was hauled up the mountain and this formed the basis of a good workable rope tow for many years.

During this time the hard working members turned their energies to erecting a shelter – the club hut.

It was again built in Penrith, taken to pieces and carried up bit by bit and erected on a levelled piece of ground to the east of Savages Gully. Six months of hard graft, in appalling weather conditions, saw the completion by Christmas 1958.

The members replaced the rope tow with a modern one in 1989.

All the work was done by a band of enthusiastic members who planned, surveyed, excavated, concreted, joined wood, and worked stone. All the materials for the project had to be lifted up by helicopter.

In January 1990, the hut and tow were completely buried by a huge snowfall and it took three weeks to dig it out and get it working.

The ease of use of the new tow has encouraged young people to come up Raise and use it, particularly snow boarders.

The club's most recent project was to replace the ageing wooden club hut, built in 1958, with a more permanent structure in time for the Millennium. Once again, members rallied round and gave their valuable time and expertise in building the new hut. This was completed and officially opened on Boxing Day 1999.

It is a splendid, well-built structure using local materials with modern insulating materials, and provides a warm shelter for anyone skiing. It was achieved under the direction of the club's master builder.

All these projects have largely been financed by members. Supporting grants towards the projects have been given by the tourist board, local authorities, the lottery, the sports council and various local sponsors.

Get on the ski circuit for some

Majestic: The Dolomites of Sued Tirol.

FACTfile

To check out the region go to; www.suedtyrol.it or go on to the Val Gardena website (www.valgardena.it) and click on the "Live & Web Cam" on the left hand side of the home page. Here you will see webcams covering some of the areas. You can see the snowfall and get some early idea of what it is like, and I can't recommend it enough for a truly great ski holiday.

One hotel I would recommend is the Hotel Linder (www.linder.it), a 3-star family run hotel right in the heart of Selva, five minutes from the main Ciampinoi lift. This hotel offers fantastic accommodation and really looks after its guests.

Selva's Ski & Boarders Factory is a great place for ski and boot hire and has many English-speaking ski school instructors; go online at www.ski-factory.it

One of the world's greatest ski circuits and most spectacular areas in the world is the Sella Ronda, set in the Dolomites in Sued Tirol, Italy. Barry Spouge wonders why more Brits don't holiday there

Set among the mighty Dolomites, the Gruppo Sella (a huge limestone rock) stands majestically in the centre, with a ski route all around the base of it.

Travelling the circuit (around 26 km) you will pass through many villages with many access points allowing you to hop on a lift and go into some of the smaller villages off the main routes.

The Dolomites are one of the world's most spectacular areas – and they are never out of view, huge limestone rock faces growing out of the gentle landscape.

You follow a very clear signed route, either clockwise (Orange) or anti clockwise (Green). We used the green route as it is often not so crowded. The circuit can be completed in around three to four hours, but during busy periods it could take up to six hours.

The Sella Ronda circuit is a great way to see the area. We started from Selva, about the largest village in the region, using the green route. From Selva we headed up the Ciampinoi lift, in the centre of town, and out towards the Plan De Gralba and around to the Passo Sella. Most runs are Reds, some quite challenging, but many are easily completed by most intermediate skiers. From the top of the Ciampinoi lift you can also take the World Cup run (Saslong Classic), a very challenging Black run, either A or B down into St Christina.

Moving on from the Passo Sella, we came into the Val Di Fassa region. In this region you can exit the circuit and go off into Campitello Di Fassa or Canazei. Pressing on, we skied some fantastically long runs through trees, wide excellently groomed pistes, mostly Reds but with some Blues here and there, heading for Arabba.

Close to Arabba is the Marmolada glacier which, if you have a day spare, is worth a visit to ski challenging Reds. Make sure weather conditions are OK as at times the lifts can be closed due to high winds. At Arabba we nearly made a mistake by taking a wrong lift – easily done; so many lifts sometimes meet in one area it's easy to miss the green Sella Ronda sign and head off somewhere entirely different.

After Arabba, it's off through Passo Campolongo into the Alta Badia region, a beautiful region in itself, where you can ski some of the longer runs of the circuit out through Corvara, La Villa and Colfosco.

A couple of years back I holidayed in S Cassiano, a small up-market village off the main track, a fantastic area with plenty of good runs. Only last season, a new gondola at Piz Sorega was put in to replace an ageing chair lift.

So, pressing on we skied from Arraba through towards Colfosco. Here we took another detour off into the Edelweiss Tal, a small area just off the beaten track where you will find a fantastic "Hut" looking out over the valley under the Col Pradat – a large rock face.

spectacular action

Time for a breather: A chance to rest weary legs.

We stopped here for refreshment, sitting in the sunshine resting those weary legs. Another excellent "Hut" to visit is "Jimmy's Hutte" after Colfosco and close to the Dantercepies lifts. We spent an excellent lunch hour here on a previous day.

Somewhat recovered we set off on the homeward leg which was a long Red to Passo Gardena then on up to Dantercepies; from here we could easily ski back down into the centre of Selva, close to our hotel.

All in all, the circuit is an excellent way to spend a day's skiing. A word of warning, though: make sure you have adequate warm clothing with you and check all the lifts before leaving to ensure none is closed for bad weather.

It is also advisable to ensure that you keep an eye on time to make sure you have enough to get all of the lifts back. Quite often you end up chasing the sun around. Most of the runs are in sunshine, but if the weather's cold the area from Corvara back towards Selva can be extremely chilly.

The Dolomites region is well-known for having more sunny days – they say it's around 8 out of every 10 days when the sun shines. Every visit I make it's more often the case.

The slopes cover a huge area, known as the Dolomiti Superski, some 1220 kms with around 460 lifts. Many old drag lifts have now been replaced by fast quads with older chairlifts being replaced by modern gondolas, connecting the whole area with Selva, the best-known resort.

The region has extensive snow-making facilities to ensure good coverage throughout the season. It is a bit like being in Austria; indeed the Sued Tirol used to be part of Austria, that's why it looks Austrian, and the food is a mix of Austrian and Italian. The area has its own culture, Ladin, which many of the locals consider themselves.

Throughout the area, you will also find many mountain huts steeped in character with great food selections.
